The one-page monthly client report

In vcita's 2025 survey of 500 US small businesses, the #1 reason owners dropped their marketing agency was no return on investment (60%). Usually that means they couldn't see what they were paying for. This page makes the work visible in 10 minutes a month. Send it in the first week of every month, every month, even a slow one.

The template (copy it into a doc, keep it to one page)

[Client business] · [Month Year] report

Headline: [one honest sentence: the biggest change this month, good or bad]

Number	This month	Last month	Change	Where it comes from
Calls from the Google profile				Google Business Profile › Performance › Calls
Website clicks from the profile				Google Business Profile › Performance › Website clicks
Direction requests				Google Business Profile › Performance › Directions
Clicks from Google Search to the site				Google Search Console › Performance
Form leads / bookings				the form inbox, booking tool, or GA4 key events
New reviews (and new average)				the Google profile
Pages published or updated				your work log

What I did this month

- [3–6 bullets, in plain words: "Added a page for deck repair in Broken Arrow", "Answered 4 reviews"]

Next month

1. [the most useful thing]
2. [second]
3. [third]

One suggestion: [the one thing THEY could do that would help most, e.g. "ask the 10 customers from this month for a review", "add photos of the new truck"]

How to fill it in without getting it wrong

- Pick 4–6 numbers and keep the same ones every month, so the trend means something. Don't swap in a better-looking number when one dips.
- Compare the same length of time. Month vs last month, and once you have a year of data, vs the same month last year (seasonal trades swing a lot).
- If a number went down, say so first and give the likely reason: season, a holiday, a competitor's new ads, a Google change. Hiding it is how trust ends.
- Never claim credit you can't show. "Calls went up 18%" is a fact; "my work brought you 18% more calls" usually isn't provable. Say what you did and what changed.
- Leads beat traffic. Owners care about calls, bookings and forms. Put those first, impressions last or not at all.
- Note anything unusual: a week the profile was suspended, a site outage, a price change, a big job that skews the month.

The 3-line email to send it with

> Subject: [Business] · [Month] report
>
> Hi [Name], your [Month] report is attached. The short version: [headline]. Next month I'm focusing on [#1 from the list]. Anything you'd like me to look at?

Example (made-up numbers, to show the shape)

Example Pressure Washing · October report

Headline: Profile calls are up for the third month running, and the new driveway-cleaning page is already getting clicks.

Number	October	September	Change
Profile calls	41	35	+6
Website clicks	58	52	+6
Directions	9	12	–3 (fewer walk-ins after the season)

Search clicks to the site	214	187	+27
Quote requests	11	8	+3
New reviews	6 (4.9★)	3 (4.9★)	+3

What I did: driveway-cleaning page, Owasso and Jenks town pages, 4 profile posts, replied to every review. Next month: a gutter-cleaning page, winter hours on the profile, the review-request text after every job. One suggestion: send me photos from 3 jobs a month; listings with fresh photos look more active.

Do it faster: paste the numbers into Claude with prompt 19 from "20 Claude prompts to land local clients", or let the seo-retainer skill (Clients pack) build it from the numbers you paste and remember last month for the comparison. Free client-finding skills: github.com/WordRocket/local-client-finder. Source: vcita SMB marketing survey 2025. Results vary.